When airmen from No. 2 A.O.S. tackled the job of searching for missing U.S. transport command aircraft in the north some weeks ago they were successful in rescuing two American survivors lost in the wilderness for 19 days. It was a long, hard, and dangerous search, but the airmen's family feelings were strong. So when the trophy, which was the U.S. Army Air Force's handsomely trophy commemorating the assistance of this school personnel, was presented to Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, O.B.E., D.F.C. Presentation took place at No. 3 "M" depot Thursday night during a wings parade. Above is shown Capt. May, (right), receiving the trophy from Col. T. L. Mosley, officer commanding the Alaskan Wing of the U.S.A.A.F. Transport Command.

The picturesque pageantry depicted in the above scenes occurred at the arms of No. 3 "M" depot Thursday evening, when for the first time a class of airmen graduates from No. 2 Air Observers School in Edmonton received their wings from the United States Air Forces. The large scene in the big layout shows the interior of the hangar, impressive with flags of the United Nations. The graduating airmen are in the centre of the square, with honor guards from No. 3 "M" depot, No. 2 A.O.S., and the U.S.A.A.F. The graduation ceremony is the sides of the square. In the upper right panel is Sgt. P. H. Simonson of Kingman, receiving his wings from Col. T. L. Mosley, U.S.A.A.F. At the right is Sqn. Ldr. R. E. Burden, Calgary, receiving his wings. Next is Sgt. L. F. Polkowsky, New Jersey. He was the sole American graduate. At the right on the bottom Capt. W. R. "Wop" May, O.B.E., D.F.C., is presenting identification bracelets to the two class winners, Sgt. R. H. Blackburn of 9939 107 street; head of the navigators, and Sgt. J. H. Calwell, Australia, who led the class of air bombers. (See story Page 9)

Government Favors International Co-Operation in Air Transport

Supreme Court Upholds Section Of Alberta Act

OTTAWA, April 2.—(CP)—In territorial collaboration and co-operation in traffic is favored by the government, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said today in a statement to the house of commons on the government's civil aviation policy.

The government, "is prepared to support in international collaboration where possible the development of civilian air transport policy can be demonstrated as being best calculated to serve not only the immediate needs of the Canadian people but also our overriding interest in the establishment of an international order which will prevent the outbreak of another world war."

DOMESTIC POLICY

On domestic aviation policy, Mr. King said, the government sees no objection to a policy that would permit Trans-Canada Air Lines to act as a Canadian agency for operating international air services.

Mr. King said that there was confusion from the ban and that the government had been concerned to see that the ban did not interfere with the operation of Canadian air lines and such other services as might be designated.

Confederation between air lines in Canada and abroad would not be permitted. Private companies would be encouraged to enter the field.

The government, Mr. King announced, has taken the design of a new Canadian type of transport aircraft for post-war industries.

Confusion Over Workers' Order Claimed Here

Although the Dominion government claims in order affecting employment of Canadian workers by United States firms does not extend to clerical workers, Selective Service officers here are refusing to allow Americans to hire clerical help even though the order has been withdrawn.

Mr. Vance charged that there was confusion from the ban and that the government had been concerned to see that the ban did not interfere with the operation of Canadian air lines and such other services as might be designated.

Confederation between air lines in Canada and abroad would not be permitted. Private companies would be encouraged to enter the field.

While it would not be possible to employ all Red F.P. personnel and those now in the aircraft industry in civilian aviation after the war, the government hoped that at least part of the aircraft industry would be retained for Canadian aircraft manufacturers.

Mr. King said that he had been informed that the aircraft industry would be retained for Canadian aircraft manufacturers.

"Canada has a geographical position that will enable it to play an important part in the development of international air transport," said the Prime Minister.

Canada today is the fourth greatest military air power among the United Nations and in the post-war period, make every effort to maintain its present strength.

The minister said that the suspension of international air routes would not affect special rates granted to members of the armed forces.

Mr. King said that the Canadian National Railways president had urged for several months suspension of weekend travel in the railroads to reduce congestion but the price board had opposed the change, contending that it would increase living costs.

During the war the development of international air routes must be deferred in favor of military purposes.

Thousands See Wings Presentation Ceremony at Arena

Insignia Are Presented By Col. Thomas L. Mosley, Of U.S. Army Air Force

The old arena out in the northeastern part of Edmonton has been the setting for many colorful and dramatic events in the past 30 years, but the 4,500 airmen and citizens who witnessed Thursday night's wing presentation ceremony to graduates from No. 2 A.O.S. saw something that in one respect eclipsed all that happened there before. The large crowd saw the old sports arena proudly and dramatically become a place where international history was made.

Because when Col. Thomas L. Mosley, commanding officer of the Force Transport Command pinned the single wing of the navigation and communications branch of the first graduate, a chapter was started in the good book of Canada's relations with the United States.

It was the first time in history that an officer of the United States Army Air Corps had received graduation insignia from the Royal Canadian Air Force. The presentation of the Air Training Plan by making the presentations a wings parade on Canada Day.

It also marked the first occasion that a squad of United States airmen, their khaki uniforms contrasting with the blue and white of the R.C.A.F. and New Zealand and the deeper blue of Australia, had formed a complete detachment. And it certainly was significantly new even to Edmontonians who have been here long enough to keep pace with events here since the debacle at Pearl Harbor just over a year ago.

But among these scenes so new there were solidly familiar backdrops. One was Edmonton's own arrival of the First Wing, R.C.W., Capt. W. G. May, O.B.E., D.F.C., manager for western Canada of Canadian Airways and the man who, as captain of Air Observers' School is operating.

Capt. May, a hard-fighting fighter pilot in the First Great War, was honored at the arena of No. 3 "M" depot though he was not present.

Heavy Demand Reported For Victory Plots

Demands for victory gardens continued unabated Friday, April 3 at 8:30 a.m. up to more than 45 percent was outside the Edmonton office of the Land Settlement Office in the Hall seeking lease of lots for garden purposes.

This line-up had increased to 75 percent by 10 a.m. and was added to as the morning progressed. Two officials of the society teaming up to handle the demand came every two minutes, and by the time the early applicants had been dealt with all their garden plots were taken.

On Thursday, the last day for previous holders of lots to renew their leases, the steady stream of applications were dealt with an official stated. Practically all the plots were taken up again this year, he stated.

The society acts as rental agents to the local leasing lot to individuals for garden plots and last year more than 4,000 plots were rented for this purpose.

Damaged by Bombers

British Eighth Army Captured City of Gabes Without Firing a Shot

By NELL RUSSELL

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

GABES, Tunisia, March 30.—(Delayed)—Tired and dusty soldiers of the British Eighth Army swam in the Mediterranean and sun-bathed on soft white sands with pretty French girls today while behind them lay the bomb-shattered city of Gabes, which they had occupied without firing a shot.

The city had been heavily bombed by British and American bombers, sounding Major Erwin Rommel's communications, but the population welcomed the British soldiers with hugs and kisses.

Gabes' population of nearly 20,000 French and 20,000 Arabe had been reduced to 10,000 residents during the German occupation.

Local people with whom this correspondent talked on a tour of the captured city said that the Germans and the Nazis grabbed most of the available food, ripped doors and windows from houses, and built new up bridges in and near the city as they withdrew northward yesterday.

PLUNGED INTO SILENCE

The British troops who came in to the city found that men, women and children were scattered throughout the desert plowed into the sand and desert plunged into the surf and made friends with the local inhabitants, whom they had seen since leaving Tripoli more than two months ago.

The blonde 19-year-old daughter of a Frenchman and an English sunning herself on the beach, said that Gabes had undergone an air raid, but that the British had driven off the Axis troops started to evacuate the city.

"We are surprised," she said. "The German planes belong to the Postal Telegraph Company. They never supply us with letters. When mailing letters, for outside points, we have to make combinations of other denominations."

MAY BE ISSUED

According to what officials had heard, there might be an issue of new seven cent stamps in the near future. This one item they were certain to get if this stamp was to be produced according to agreement of the countries which belong to the Postal Telegraph Company.

At present, there has been no announcement of an increase in the price of an airmail letter going to the way overseas to a man in the cities. At the moment owing to lack of space, all the airmail letters are going by regular sea transport. However, airmail letters are going to many of the special little blue letters as possible. Rates for these two types of messages have not been changed.

In Police Court

Remand Is Granted Non-Support Case

Rhys L. Evans charged with non-support was remanded by Magistrate A. Miller, K.C., in police court Friday morning, May 3 and the accused pleaded on his own recognizance of $500.

The accused, 26, was born in 1919, leaving his wife and two children in Edmonton. Unsupportable, he was granted bail of $500. He had purchased musical instruments but failed to provide for his family.

The accused stated that he had been sick and left Edmonton for the coast because of that illness. He had returned to his wife but she had not replied.

The Crown admitted that the accused had failed to give any address. He was brought back to Edmonton. He didn't do the right thing, continued the prosecutor, but a man with so little sense of responsibility deserved to go to jail. His sentence will be pronounced in jail, he would be told.

The accused said he was sorry in having failed his wife.

"I am giving you a chance to make good," concluded Mr. Miller.

"You must work and look after your wife and family. The accused was granted bail on his own recognizance to the proper authorities when required."

Jesse Smith, charged with non-support, was told by Mr. Miller that she was a widow with a list of losses. It was hopeless to do anything with her, apparently to be given a $500 recognizance of $500 and costs or two months with hard labor.

Power Production Reveals Increase

Production of power at Edmonton's power plant from Jan. 1 to March 29, 1943, totalled 1,090,000 kilowatt hours compared with 21,477,100 for the same period last year, or an increase of 3,54,300 kilowatt hours, according to a report issued Friday by R. G. Watson, power supervisor, in consultation with the city commissioners.

The electric light department was able to save 19,412,000 kilowatt hours of the production of the railway with 343,300 and the pumping plant at the waterworks department with 820,000 kilowatt hours the electric light department, 17,000,000, the street railway 2,040,000 and the pumping plant 1,043,000 kilowatt hours.

FOOTBALL JOBS

FOR 1943

EDMONTON, N.W.T.—The long list of football jobs to be filled will be recalled that the U.S. Army Trans-mountain bakers faced the necessity of deciding whether they were to be supplied with essential supplies to sustain their morale.

Bakers pointed out that they are faced with a serious problem here in that the U.S. Army has increased in population and the fact that their quota of sugar remains the same.

It was decided to have a committee of 70 per cent of the bakers who were to place a joint in white. I get mighty cold being a warm-blooded southerner.

When this was done, it was a joint of the appreciation of the U.S.A.F.A. Transport Command.

After the meeting, although he was speechless at the start of the ceremony his feelings might then be imagined. He said he could only thank Col. Mosley
